Principal's Message

We are very thankful to all parents who participated in the Parent / Teacher interviews regarding the Progress Reports. Report Cards will be sent home on January 27, 2021 to communicate in a formal way your child's progress. However, we would encourage parents to reach out to teachers between now and then should you have any questions / concerns about your child's academic and social progress.

Staff have been Shouting Out to each other and we have designed a Learning Bulletin board to continue to applaud everyone in the learning process. Photos on this board are form the Pick-Up Parade and Zoom meeting and etc. We thought it would be a great way for students to see our learning as well when they are back on campus.

I wanted to write to all of our students in praise of their hard work and dedication while we navigate the e-learning process. Your dedication to academics is inspiring. You all continue to work hard to ensure that you are doing your best during these circumstances. We are very proud of all of you and know that your hard work does not go unnoticed. Continue to work hard, to expect the best of yourself and you will continue to learn.

Title: E-Learning: Behavioral and Emotional Difficulties

Description: With online schooling a lot of children have been experiencing difficulties maintaining focus and motivation which has resulted in behavioral issues. Parents have also been experiencing stress surrounding the balance between the demands of their personal life while juggling the new tasks of online schooling. We will be discussing tips and tools to help reduce and improve your child's behavior as well as reducing your stress.

Presenter: Fajer Almenaie, MSc, BCBA Sara Al Roudhan, MSc

What can I do to get – and keep – my child active?

- Start early. Young children love to play and be active. Encouraging lots of safe and unstructured movement and play can help build a strong foundation for an active lifestyle.
- Make physical activity part of your family's daily routine by taking family walks or playing active games together.
- Take young people to places where they can be active, such as public parks.

- Be positive about the physical activities in which your child participates and encourage them to be interested in new activities.
- Make physical activity fun. Activities can range from team or individual sports to recreational activities such as walking, running, skating, bicycling, swimming, playground activities, or free-time play.
